A book agent recently fell off a big bridge in Texas, and was of course killed. The county judge was brought from Langtry, the town nearest to the bridge, to hold a "crown's quest." The judge arrived with a great concourse of people, all anxious to serve on the jury. Proceedings were begun by examining the body of the book agent. Upon this were found a loaded revolver and $40 in cash.

Perceiving these, the judge said:
"There ain't nothing to do about this case, gentleman of the jury.
This ere book agents death and its perfectly plain how he met his death. But what I want to know is, what was he doing with that gun? That's agin the laws of Texas. He ain't here to explain, but because a book agent takes it into his head to put on wings and mount to the skies is no reason why the great state of Texas should be defrauded. Law is law, and justice is justice. I fine him $40 for carrying a deadly weapon."
It is needless to say that the fine was paid.

What has become of the editor

Harry Dove, a glass worker at

The people of Whitesburg, Ky.,

It is told that an absent minded

they had gone home.

much confidence in Chamberlain's after using it. Mr. Nelson takes no risk in doing this because the remedy is a certain cure for the

His Trigg county friends; having preservation of the political principles to which he subscribes.

The multitude of physicians turned out by the American medical colleges is alarming. Great Britain has one physician to every 1,707 of the population; Germany one to every 3,038; France one to every 2,776; Austria one to every 3,857; Belgium one to every 2,841;
Italy one to every 3,536, and Spain one to every 3,375. In the United States there are about 100,000 physicians, or one to every 626 of the population, and still they come.
This does not imply that there is more sickness in this country than in the others mentioned, but that the ease with which diplomas are obtained here has overstocked us with doctors.

There were many funny things occurred at the state convention, but the funniest thing of all was the strong and popular ticket that was put in the field.

We have been going to state conventions for many years, but we have never seen a convention break up with as much good feeling over the result of the convention as at this one. No old sores or bitter disappointments were left over for home.

With every $4.00 purchase we give you FREE a piece of Silverware, a Cloth Bound Book or a Portfolio of Popular Music, containing 160 pages.

You do not have to make the entire purchase at one time.

Tickets will be given you showing the amount of each purchase and when you have tickets to the amount of $4.00 the present is yours.

Our Prices at all times are just right.

trict, and though we differ with the young giant of democratic faith, on the silver question, yet we are willing to lend him, in our feeble way, all of the assistance possible, to make him a popular and useful member of the state executive committee.

After seventeen years as a member of the State Executive of the First Congressional district, Hon. Henry Burnett retires with all the honors of that position. He has made the party a true and faithful official, and though he is no longer at the head of the party in this district, yet he is willing to take his place with the boys in the trenches and do all he can for the success of the democratic party.

A stronger ticket, composed of better men, could not have been nominated at Louisville last week by the democratic party or any other party. They are gentlemen of the highest type, democrats without guile, and as brave and chivalrous as any political leaders that were ever at the head of any party. They will lead the party to victory.

We are like the good old Methodist brother was, by his new circuit rider, who did not believe in immersion at all. He said "I differ with our new brother, on baptism, but for all that we are both good Methodists and I love to hear him preach the doctrine." So are we concerning Mr. Hardin we differ with him on the silver question, but we are both good democrats, and we love to hear him preach the democratic doctrine. He has been actively in the harness fighting democratic battles for thirty years, and the party did right in rewarding him with the nomination of the highest office in its gift. No party can afford to turn down its great defender on account of a small difference on some policy matter.

Wherever the Populist have been numerous, there plenty of free silver democrats could be found until the state convention met last week, since which time it is hard to find one of them. But we have nothing to say about our silver friends for they acted very nicely at the convention, and did all they could to harmonize the party and assist in nominating good and satisfactory men for office. When we saw they were willing to do this, then we were willing to round it all up and consider it only a difference on a minor issue. Both sound money and silver men were got in past what they wanted and all returned home ready and willing to heartily support the ticket. This is as it should be.

The most laughable sight at the convention was the editor of the Tribune and editor Parker of the Kentucky Populist sitting side by side in that great body of democrats. The editor of the Tribune however is getting so old that he cares very little the kind of company he keeps. It really looked like the lion and the lamb lying down together.

The republicans have been wanting something to do with Mr. Bradley at the head of their ticket. Now let them turn their battery loose. The democratic ticket is now in the field and plenty able to take care of its party. The republicans can now see far enough ahead to see defeat staring them in the face at every corner.

A Short Sketch of Our Next Governor.

PARKER WAT HARDIN.

P. Wat Hardin was born on June 3, 1841, in Adams county, near Columbia, Ky. His father was a noted lawyer of that county. Judge Parker C. Hardin, and had been a practitioner for years. It was in his office at Columbia that the present nominee for governor studied law, and he was but a little past age when he was admitted to the bar. Very soon after this he moved to Washington county, to the town of Springfield and there met Miss Mary Sallee, of Wayne county, whom he shortly afterwards married. In a few years young Hardin moved to Monticello, in Wayne county, and later to Harrodsburg, in Mercer county, his present home. His son Martin D. Hardin, has been named the orator of the South. Two daughters, Misses Jane and Julia, are at present at school at Oxford, O., and his married daughter, Mrs. Carrie Harris, lives at Big Stone Gap, Va.

Gen. Hardin has four brothers and three sisters living: Ben Lee and Charles Hardin, practicing attorneys at Harrodsburg; John Hardin, who lives in Tennessee, and Cabel Hardin, connected with the Frankfort penitentiary; Mrs. Hatcher, wife of the postmaster at Columbia; Mrs. Carrie McBrear, of Anderson county, and Miss Sarah Hardin.

Personally there is hardly a more popular man in the State than Mr. Hardin. He is full of personal magnetism, and to that quality is attributed his success in politics. He was three times elected Attorney General of the state—first in 1881. He was a candidate four years ago for the democratic nomination for governor.

Now They Have a Chance— Let Billy B. Rage— Come on Billy B.

Now Mister Bradley we are ready for you. You, your party and your party's convention showed you afraid of the currency issue. We will let you off of any extended discussion of the matter. Come down to state issues with which alone a governor and a candidate for governor has to do. Gen. Wat Hardin is now the democratic nominee for governor. He is one of that "State House ring" about which you have been howling and which you have been arraigning for nine years past.

Make the same wild charges before an intelligent Kentucky audience and in the presence of Wat Hardin that you have been making when there was none to answer and none to make you afraid. If you and your party were and are afraid of the currency question, we will let the people compare your's and the democratic platform on that subject, and will not press you to a discussion of a thing about which you know little. What we want you to do is to examine and answer that section of the platform that contains the record of Kentucky democratic administrations for 30 years past. We want you to throw in the teeth of that and in the face of P. Wat Hardin, your's and your party's old charge of the democrats, "ruinous, corrupt, and shameful mismanagement of state affairs."

Come on Billy B., a foe man worthy of your's or any other's steel has his armor on, and is waiting to prove you and your party bags of wind.—Capital.

Didn't Like Cream Tartar.

While at the state convention last week, we could but recall, what happened with us eight years ago. It was in June and the weather was exceedingly warm and sultry. Delegates were there from Calloway and Marshall and among them from Calloway, was Mr. Charlie Stewart, who by the way is now, the nominee of the populist party in that county for a seat in the next General Assembly. We have always known Charlie and have known him to like him. It was about 11 o'clock in the morning when the thermometer was a way up in the nineties. Charlie had been out with the boys the night before and was a little bit tipsy, so to speak, so in order to be nice and clever we asked him to go with us to one of the most fashionable ice cream parlors on Fourth street. He went. We called for two creams, which the waiter soon brought and placed one before us and one before him. The parlor was full of the most fashionable people in the city, but imagine our chagrin, when Charlie sat for a moment looking intently on the delicious cream, when in a very loud voice he cried to the waiter, to "come and take this old cream tartar away from here, as you suppose I came all the way to Louisville to eat old cream tartar take it away." The poor waiter looked horror stricken, but he saw Charlie meant it and took it away. Ever since then we have been a little careful when we invited to take ice cream with us.

COY.

The farmers are busily engaged in laying by corn, some of them as usual laid it by when they planted it, that is run around the field once then mounted a stump and laid "her by."

The state convention is a thing of the past. Now democrats let us all go to work, and show the republicans and populists that old Kentucky is democratic to the core.

What has become of the candidates for the legislature? It is time that we should hear from them. We are in favor of a revision of the common school laws. And would be pleased to have the next general assembly enact the following:

Be it enacted: that one trustee constitute the board of trustees in each district and be elected on the first Saturday in June for one year with a compensation of $10.

That there be only one examination per year, and said examination to last four days, and to be held the first week in June.

That neither of the examiners shall reside in the county in which

The Combination, Proportion and Process are Peculiar to Hood's Sarsaparilla, giving it strength and curative power Peculiar to itself, not possessed by other medicines. Hood's

Sarsaparilla

Cures Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Sores, Boils, Pimples and all other affections caused by impure blood; Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Sick Headache, Indigestion, Debility, Catarrh, Rheumatism, Kidney and Liver Complaints. It is Not What We Say, but What Hood's Sarsaparilla Does, that Tells the Story—Hood's Sarsaparilla they examine, nor shall they both be from the same county.

That only two and one-half per cent be added upon the certificate of an applicant by reason of having taken the reading circle course.

That first, second and third grade certificates be abolished and instead a common school certificate be granted to all who do not fall below 50 in any branch, good for one year.

That the applicant having the highest general average take the best district in the county, the next best grade the next best district and so on down until all the districts are supplied with teachers.

The Result of the Convention.

The state convention has come and gone, and its work is now before the democrats of Kentucky. The convention was the largest that ever met in the state and was composed of as good democrats as live in the world whose object in meeting in that capacity was to name a ticket that would be successful at the November election and express in a state platform their views upon all questions that came before them. Aside from the naming of the candidates, the money question was the one that was uppermost in the minds of all the delegates from every section of the state, and each one was anxious to learn the sentiment of the convention on that important question. But it was soon evident that the free silver element in the party had no show to control the convention. In organizing the district conventions they had a majority in only three, the first, second and third, while the other eight was overwhelmingly for sound money. The first district stood 44 for silver and 38 against, while the second and third districts stood about in the same proportion. As soon as the convention was organized, it was very evident that the state was for sound money and against the unlimited free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1. But the sound money men were fair and conservative and were more than willing to do anything for harmony. After adopting a sound money platform it was clearly to be seen that the silver men had seen their mistake and were willing to pull together for harmony. There were only two candidates for governor, Hardin and Clay, one had spoken his views on the money question, while the other had maintained a deathless silence. One was very popular, the other was not, one had spent his life and all he ever made in fighting the battles of the party, the other had not, one was the ablest exponent of democratic doctrine in the state while the other was not, one was exceeding popular, the other was not. It was soon to be seen that there was not enough in the silver question to prevent Wat Hardin from receiving the nomination. He was the choice of the sovereign democracy of the state and the democrats in that convention were solid for the success of the party and no prejudice on the money question would prevent them from doing their duty and in acting for the success of the party. The ticket as named elsewhere in this paper was nominated and a better one could not have been named. The delegates returned home well pleased and contented with the ticket and confident of its election by at least 20,000 majority at the November election. The convention was a success and the ticket will be a success.

OBITUARY.

Died June 6, 1895, Mrs. Genoa Chandler wife of J. H. Chandler, Olive, Ky. Death, our remorseless foe, has in the person of Mrs. Genoa Chandler, taken from our midst one of earth's most noble women. She was a pure true woman. Her father having died when she was a child she had a hard struggle to gain an education sufficient to secure a place in the ranks of the teachers of her native country. But by dint of perseverance and hard study, she not only secured a place as a teacher but rapidly rose to the lead in the front ranks of her profession, securing the best schools and the highest praise wherever she taught. In Oct., 1883 she became a Christian. She obeyed the gospel at Briensburg, where she was teaching at that time, under the beloved Jno. F. McCoy. She lived true to the faith till called to her reward. It is sad that one who had equipped herself to do so much good for the world should be so soon called away. Death lies on her like an untimely frost, upon the sweetest flower of the field. She left behind her an infant son, who is thus deprived of a mother's love, and will never know a mother's caress, and a husband, to whom she was sincerely devoted, upon whose heart has thus fallen the shadow of his life. Oh! what a shadow o'er the heart is flung when peals the requiem of the loved and young. To him we would say, Don't become despondent. Whom he loveth he chastiseth and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth. Fix your hopes more and more firmly on heaven whither she has gone on before. After while you will meet her to part from her no more.

HOW CAN WE HELP YOU? Why, by inducing you to purchase a box of Colli's Tobacco Antidote, which is a preparation compounded strictly of herbs and roots, which is a tonic to the system; also cures the tobacco habit and knocks cigarettes silly.

We denounce the republican legislation known as the Sherman Act of 1890, as a cowardly make shift, fraught with possibilities of danger in the future, which should make all of its supporters as well as its author anxious for its speedy repeal. We hold to the use of both gold and silver as the standard money of the country, and to the coinage of both gold and silver without discriminating against either metal, or charge for mintage, but the dollar unit of coinage of both metals must be of equal intrinsic and exchangeable value, or be adjusted through international agreements, or by such safe grounds of legislation as shall insure the maintenance of the parity of the two metals, and the equal power of every dollar, at all times, in the market and in the payment of debts; and we demand that all paper currency shall be kept at par with and redeemable in such coin. We insist upon this policy as especially necessary for the protection of the farmers and laboring classes, the first and most defenseless victims of unstable money and a fluctuating currency.

Two men and one Woman Killed.
Last Friday night just on the other side of Tennessee river four miles above Birmingham, near the county line between Trigg and Lyon counties, Birthe Colston, shot and killed John Rhodes and Carl Hammonds. There was a fish boat at Rhodes landing with a few bad women on it and where men went to drink and carouse. Colston had been sent to the penitentiary and swore when he returned he would kill seven men. These parties met at this boat and he met Rhodes and shot him. A boy 17 years old went to pick him up when Colston shot and broke his neck. Then Geo. and Rob Rhodes left the boat and were gone awhile when they returned and called Colston out and shot him. A girl 15 years old came out with him and in the shooting she was shot dead. Three are dead and two more will likely die. This was the result of whiskey, women and an old grudge.

ELECTROPOISE

Rev. John Rodgers, Danville, Ky.
It is a mystery to me, almost a miracle.

Rev. S. Meek, Catlettsburg, Ky.
I have used the Electropoise for five years and find it invaluable as a curative agent, especially in it efficacious in cases of feeble women and delicate children.

Rev. Robert Barrett, Louisville Baptist Seminary.
Electropoise cured after all other remedies failed.

Rev. W. W. Bruce, Houstonville, Ky.
Electropoise cured opium habit.

Rev. Geo. Means, Covington, Ky.
In one night the Electropoise relieved brain congestion and vertigo.

Dr. L. T. Reid, Druggist, of Fulton, Ky., writes us under date of Jan. 10, 1891, as follows: "In an experience in the drug business of over 20 years I found the Gardner-Rogers Cough and Consumption Cure to be the best cough medicine I have ever sold.

Ram's Horn Talk.

Knowledge of Christ always means death to self.

A lie in business is as black as it is anywhere else.

The devil knows men too well to be seen with a long face.

When one woman praises another, folks think she is sarcastic.

The devil is afraid of the smile that is born in an honest heart.

Many a man has won a boy's heart by helping him to make a kite.

About all some people want with religion is to make them feel good.

It is only now and then that you can find people who know how to rest.

Nothing in the world grows any taster than a trouble that is nursed.

No man can be a successful hypocrite and amount to much at anything else.

God is often doing the most with us when we think our work amounts to little.

People never come to know each other well until they have prayed together.

The man who is running for office has no such word in his dictionary as rest.

Learn to think right and you will not have much trouble about behaving right.

Being willing to keep sin in the heart is the only way we can keep Christ out.

No man can be right with God while he is wrong with his next door neighbor.

No man is a Christian who does not in some way resemble Christ in character.

Some of all sorts.

Too many people would rather have glory than goodness.

It is much easier to be contented without wealth than it is with it.

Men are often gainers when they lose their money.

It costs less to be contented than it does to be unhappy.

Rather skin a carcass for pay in the public streets than be idly dependent upon charity.

The Philadelphia practice of naming streets after forest trees become well established.

To contradict and argue with a total stranger is like knocking at a gate to ascertain if there is anyone within.

A baseball team up in Kensington has a pitcher named Wire and catcher named Current. Talk about your batteries.

He that thinks himself the happiest man, really is so; but he that thinks himself the wisest, is generally the greatest fool.

There is a respect due to age, but there is also a respect due to youth, the lack of which accounts for many a failure in the household and in systems of education.

The golden moments in the stream of life rush past us, and we see nothing but sand; the angels come and visit us, and we only know them when they are gone.

It is the fine souls who serve us and not what is called fine society. Fine society is only a self-protection against the vulgarities of the street and the tavern.

Starting a Balking Horse.

An officer of the police detail said recently, "When I was a mounted policeman I learned of a most humane and kind method of curing a balking horse. It not only never fails, but it does not give the slightest pain to the animal. When the horse refuses to go take the front foot at the fetlock, and bend the leg at the knee joint.

Hold it thus for three minutes, and let it down, and the horse will go. The only way in which I can account for this effective mastery of the horse is that he can think of only one thing at a time, and having made up his mind not to go, my theory is that the bending of the leg takes his mind from the original thought.

Health and Appetite Restored.
"After the grip I was left with no appetite, and suffered a great deal with my head. My mother procured a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before I had finished taking it I felt much better. It has given me good appetite and cured my headache." Clyde Miller, Olmstead, Ky.

Hood's Pills cure biliousness, indigestion.

The California courts have sustained the complaint of a young woman who brought a suit for damages for slander against a clergyman, who in a prayer before his congregation asked the Lord to cleanse her of all sin and make her worthy of the position which she held as librarian of the Los Angeles public library. The clergyman took the position that his supplication was privileged, but the court held that a slander can be perpetrated in the form of a prayer as readily as in any other form of speech. The lesson conveyed by this clergyman's experience would seem, suggests a local contemporary, to be that it is not well to be to specific in pointing out sinners.

Last June, Dick Crawford brought his 12 months old child, suffering from infantile diarrhea, to me. It had been weaned at four months old and being sickly everything ran through it like water through a sieve. I gave it the usual treatment in such cases but without benefit. The child kept growing thinner until it weighed but little more than when born, or perhaps ten pounds. I then started the father to giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy. Before one bottle of the 25 cent size had been used, a marked improvement was seen and its continued use cured the child. Its weakness and puny constitution disappeared and its father and myself believe the child's life was saved by this Remedy. J. T. MARLOW, M. D., Tamaroa, Ill. For sale by R. H. Starks.

The oracle of the Montgomery County Times prints the following: "Talk about forgetting things," said Jim Freeman, "I tell you John, my Caywood would forget his name if his friends did not speak it so often in his presence. A few days ago," continued Mr. Freeman, "he shelled a 'turn' of corn and went to mill. On arriving at the mill he found that he had forgotten his corn. He then made up his mind to buy some meal at the mill, but forgot it before he left town. After going home he went to a neighbor's house to borrow some meal and forgot his sack. The neighbor furnished him a sack and put the meal in it and he went home again, forgetting and leaving the meal he had borrowed."

How to Treat a Man—By a Horse.

When a man drops from sheer exhaustion, or illness promptly seize an end-board or a cart stake, and pound him on the head and on the ribs. If this does not recuperate him, kick him violently in the belly. This treatment will restore him if persistently administered.

If a man finds his load too heavy and feels that it will seriously strain him to proceed, kick off a fence board and knock him down—and hammer him thoroughly with the board. This will give renewed energy and he will make no more fuss. But do not on any account reduce the load. That would look to much like common sense, or humanity, and he will be likely never to balk again when overloaded.

If a man refuses to drink when you offer him water, don't give him any for two days that will "teach him" to be thirsty at any time you find it convenient to attend to him. It is a good plan to apply the whip frequently on a man who is at work. No matter if he is doing his best, hit him now and then on "general principles" and to prevent him taking any comfort. If his load is not heavy, oblige him to go faster to make up for it. Work him hard enough to bring down the average life of man one-half, as is done with horses. If no whip is handy use a club.

Tie a man's head back in an unnatural position, with his eyes up to the sun. This will give him a "fine appearance," and "prevent stumbling." Of course he will not be able to do so much work in this fix, but it makes him wretched, so it's alright.

In winter remove his clothing to "prevent his taking cold." He will also "dry quicker" when you ever work him. You must hang a blanket on his back—but leave his neck and limbs exposed—when he is not at work men so treated are "much healthier" than when allowed winter clothing.

If it is not perfectly convenient to feed a man, who is working for you, at noon, let him go without, and, by active use of the whip secure as much work as the food would have secured. Of course it wears out his vitality and distresses him, but that is no matter.

Put tight shoes on your man and keep them there until he is lame with corns. To change his shoes often costs money, not much, but some, and lameness and misery are of no account if you can save a $1 worth of shoes in a year.

When you hire a man do not be hampered by any human notions. Get all you can out of him. True nobility consists of getting money, not in decency, or kindness, or what some noodles term "character." Get money even if it is all bloodstained. These are correct principles, I am sure, for I learned them when a colt from my master, who treated all his horses on this plan—and don't he know what's what!—Ex
